Out of all topics I think I would be most likely interested in cybersecurity workforce management I say this because what stood out to me that caught my eyes that's in this field was Identify organizational policy stakeholders, Research new vulnerabilities in emerging technologies, Communicate the value of cybersecurity to organizational stakeholders and many more to think of. I feel this topic would appeal to me because in this work force it involves overseeing planning and development. There is an increasing number and sophistication of cyber threats facing things like the governments and business and that is very interesting to me. What will appeal least to me would be cybersecurity legal advice. I say this because I have heard that this field is challenging due to its high liability and risk and cost of legal services.
