

Meme: Hacking into the system becomes much easier when the front door is left unlocked!

Poor physical security practices and carelessness in managing an organization's security room can create risks of unwanted entry and could potentially cause a loss of data.

Meme: I may be able to get promoted if I share the details of my friend's cybersecurity infrastructure that he has shown me with my boss!

This meme displays an employee in an organization showing his friend, who works at a competing organization, the cybersecurity layout of the company he works at. Sharing private information about your organization's infrastructure with others, even if you trust them, could lead to unforeseen consequences and harm the organization.

Meme: I finally downloaded a VPN so I can freely click links in my emails without worrying about a virus!

Even with a VPN installed, or even more advanced security mechanisms, many threats can still affect a user's computer. Software should never be completely relied on when forming a security plan.
