The three fake websites I found are strameast.to, 123anime, and soap2day. Websites like "streamiest.to, 123anime, and soap2day" are frequently fake because they participate in illegal activities such as providing content that might have been pirated. Despite lacking the necessary licenses or permits from copyright holders, these websites make the false claim that they provide free or inexpensive access to movies, TV shows, or other media property. Some of the reasons these websites are considered fake are illegal content, malware and phishing, poor quality, lack of legal information, and unreliable payment methods.

The three real websites I found are Netflix, ESPN, and Crunchyroll. Because they are credible companies with official websites that provide content or services that are allowed and lawful, Netflix, ESPN, and Country Roll are recognized as actual websites. These websites are considered real and legitimate because of their legal operations, adherence to copyright regulations, and safe access to their services.
